

Builder's Own Home: Lovingly Maintained

3 1 1

Constructed in the late 1950's as the builder's own home, this weatherboard gem has been lovingly maintained by the one owner for nearly 60 years. As such, the bedrooms are a little larger, the ceilings are a little higher and the fittings a little better than the average homes of the period, but the typical design and solid construction remains. As modern conveniences such as ducted heating and air conditioning have become popular, the home has been updated, but the floorplan remains original.

Accommodation includes a bright living room with a feature combustion heater leading to a spacious dining room. The kitchen is neat and tidy with gas stove and small meals area. There are three bedrooms (2 with robes) and a family bathroom with shower and bath and the convenience of a separate toilet and laundry with rear access.
